Annual Report 2022

About CRY America

CRY America is a 501c3 registered non-profit that believes in a just world where all children have equal opportunities to realize their full potential and chase their dreams. CRY America believes that it is possible to ensure lasting change for children in the critical areas of education, healthcare, nutrition and protection from child labor, child marriage, abuse and exploitation.

Vision

A happy, healthy and creative child whose rights are protected and honored in a society that is built on respect for dignity, justice and equity for all.

Mission

To enable people to take responsibility for the situation of underprivileged children, especially Indian, and so motivate them to seek resolution through individual and collective action thereby enabling children to realize their full potential, and people to discover their potential for action and change.

From The President's Desk

Dear CRY America Supporters,

Thank you for supporting our projects and our children through 2022. The prolonged COVID-19 crisis spawned unforeseen complications to already serious development challenges. The effects of prolonged isolation continued to reverberate through 2022 and a major takeaway from the COVID-19 experience was the importance of face-to-face engagement to the success of interventions. The return to in-person, group activities made positive impacts much more tangible and evident.

Your generous donations enabled our projects to bring normalcy back to the lives of children- helping them overcome learning deficiencies through bridge classes, enrolling them back to school, ensuring regular health check ups and addressing the spike in child labor and child marriage.

We also brought in-person events back across our CRY Galas, CRY Walks, CRYKet and a few Action Center events. This annual booklet brings you the highlights and the key activities of the year gone by. We cannot thank you enough for everything that you've done for our children and I am truly grateful to have you by our side.

In 2023, we hope to provide children with all the opportunities to learn, grow and dream. Your ongoing support makes us stronger every year.

With gratitude and best wishes,

Shefali Sunderlal
President, CRY America

Meet Mr. K.V. Ramana Project Partner Pragathi, Chittoor

Ramana, CRY fellow turned project partner is very passionate about child rights. He started implementing CRY projects in 2004, focusing on the education, protection & participation of children from underserved communities in the Chittoor district.

Project Pragathi works with 3,500 families & more than 6,000 children in the district. Ramana said, "We have created significant impact with CRY America's help. Today, the project works with 72 schools & 55 anganwadis. 1,000+ children have rejoined school, 300 child laborers mainstreamed into the education system & 900 child marriages have been stopped."

COVID-19 was a very rough time for the organization, but the constant support from CRY America helped protect child rights in the community by conducting online life skill sessions for 4,600 children.

Sanjana, a 15-year-old girl raised by a single mother, is one such success story of Project Pragathi. During the community visit, the team learned about her & her family. They conducted sessions for families every month to educate them about the programs by the government, the benefits of schooling for children & more. They enrolled Sanjana in children groups & educated her about the social ills of child marriage, child labor etc.

Sanjana stood out in wrestling & took part in tournaments. She lost the Delhi zonal tournament, which was greatly disappointing, & thereafter she was on a winning spree. Sanjana qualified in a national level wrestling competition & bagged a gold medal. In another tournament, she participated with her 9 school friends. 6 of them brought medals home, with Sanjana winning the bronze.

Ten years from now, Sanjana aims to complete her MBA & would like to serve as a police officer. Today, Sanjana is an influencer in her community & other children look up to her.

Project Sanlaap

CRY America Project Sanlaap works to prevent children from child trafficking, child labor and child marriage. Children are rescued from prostitution and child trafficking and connected with survivor groups for counseling. The key activities which take place are strengthening of youth groups, enrolment of children from 6 to 18 years in school, youth led community outreach and interface with government officials and services.

Project Impact

- 35 child marriages stopped
- 21 trafficked children rescued
- 18 children removed from labor
- 30 dropped out children re-enrolled
- 100 trafficked survivors rehabilitated
- 120 vulnerable children supported through special coaching

2022 Grant Disbursed - $23,920

2023 Approved Budget - $24,672

Inspiring Changemakers In Kolkata's Red Light District

16 year old Zaheer* scarcely knew anything that resembled a normal childhood. Born in one of Kolkata's redlight districts, there wasn't much hope for him.

I met Zaheer in October 2022 when I visited CRY America supported project Sanlaap. I was immediately struck by Zaheer's confidence & determination to work towards a better life for himself & his peers. The education support & personalized attention have been life-changing for Zaheer & others like him.

Zaheer was forced to drop out of school at a young age. His father became blind & could no longer provide for the family. Zaheer & his brother started working at a tea processing factory. His mother formerly worked in the sex trade until she fell chronically ill & left the occupation. She continued to earn a small amount of money, producing paper pouches at home.

Before he was forced into work, Zaheer had been an eager learner & a football enthusiast who dreamed of playing professionally. Zaheer's job & the living situation began to take a heavy toll on his mental & emotional health. Like many of his peers, Zaheer turned to drugs & alcohol to cope.

One of Sanlaap's field workers became aware of Zaheer's challenges & invited him to the organization's resource center. During the discussion, Zaheer expressed a desire to continue his studies at the center. However, he declined to enroll in school since he was the sole earner in his family. And remarkably, his days of alcohol & drug abuse are behind him, thanks to ongoing counseling & motivation from Sanlaap staff.

Confident Zaheer took on a youth leader role & began speaking out against child labor & abuse. As his health improved, he jumped at the opportunity to join early-morning football practice provided by Sanlaap.

Zaheer was very compassionate for his family & community. Though his family circumstances have prevented him from leaving work, he has selflessly used his earnings to enroll his sisters in public schools. Thanks to our supporters & projects like Sanlaap, children like Zaheer are working towards a better future.

CRY Gala 2022

New York - New Jersey | Seattle | SFO - Bay Area | Houston
San Diego - Orange County

CRY America's "Heroes for Life" Galas Raised $1 Million

"Heroes for Life," CRY America's annual Gala series, returned after a two-year pandemic break to honor the organization's USA-based donors & field workers across 30 CRY America-supported projects in villages & slums throughout India.

The Gala series ran from May 14-22, with sold-out events in the San Francisco Bay Area, San Diego, New York City & Houston, with a virtual event in Seattle. This year's fundraising total smashed previous records, raising over $1 million across the 5 Galas.

Galas featured veteran Bollywood actor Vivek Anand Oberoi as celebrity guest who spoke about the importance of supporting the cause of children. Lalithamma, director of People's Organization for Rural Development (PORD), a CRY America-supported project in Andhra Pradesh shared her work during the pandemic.

"When we all act together - project partners, donors, volunteers - incredible changes happen."

CRY America CEO Shefali Sunderlal

CRY America CEO Shefali Sunderlal noted that project workers were given special permissions by the Indian government as essential workers during the pandemic & they went the extra mile to ensure that challenges faced by their communities & children were addressed, while CRY America's donors maintained their generous funding support unabated throughout the crisis.

"We had to pivot from our regular plans for the year & get a grasp on what was happening in the field where our project partners work," said Shefali at the May 20 New York Gala, held at the Taj Pierre. "Our project workers risked their lives to undertake community awareness programs on COVID-19 protocols, distribution of PPE kits, & ensure testing & vaccination efforts across their villages," she continued.

Sunderlal highlighted CRY America's model for lasting change, to which collective, community-driven action is central. She emphasized that the organization does not create parallel institutions, but rather works with the government & communities to ensure that public schools, health centers, & other public social programs & facilities remain functional & truly benefit underprivileged communities.

Other innovations implemented by CRY America projects included "bridge schools" - supplemental classes to ensure children were caught up on missed coursework; home/community kitchen gardens to improve nutrition among children, & the organization of "children's collectives", where girls & boys meet to talk about pandemic-related anxieties, hopes & future plans.

"Most of my heroes have worn saris - [CRY America partner] Lalithamma is a living example of that - she is calling me a celebrity, but in my heart I want to celebrate her!"

Vivek Anand Oberoi, Bollywood star & celebrity guest

Oberoi brought star power & charisma to the CRY Gala event series. In addition to making a special address to the attendees, he led the evening's pledge sessions, telling stories about the importance of philanthropy & appreciating the donors with personal thanks & photo ops.

Oberoï cited his mother's dedication as a palliative care worker as inspiration for his long track record of philanthropy, which he termed as "karmic investment". "I've been blessed with a lot of awards in my career, & I appreciate that recognition because that's what I do," said Oberoi, summing up. "But to me, the kids I have helped survive cancer & rescued from child marriage are my living, breathing awards- the best kind! Because that inspires me to do more, & gives me a purpose beyond what I do."

"The world is full of two kinds of people- those who need help, & those who can help," said Oberoi, closing his New York city remarks. "Every time you find yourself among those who can help, you need to count your blessings. Heroes like Lalithamma & CRY do all the hard work; we write the checks, & we share in that karmic capital."

Lalithamma, Director, People's Organization for Rural Development

Dubbed a "superhero in a sari," by Oberoi, Project PORD director Ms. J. Lalithamma took the stage nightly to share her story from growing up as a victim of gender discrimination herself to her work today to empower girls in her district.

Lalithamma founded Project PORD in 1992 to focus on girls' education as a means of preventing early marriage. Her team's dedication was her strength during COVID-19. Lockdowns & closures produced peripheral ills affecting children. Through awareness campaigns & supply distributions, Project PORD stopped 62 child marriages, & its vaccination drive resulted in zero COVID-19 cases among district children.

Lalithamma shared the compelling journey of Revathi, who was forced to drop out of school by her grandmother in order to assist with work. Through a series of meetings, Lalithamma & her team convinced her grandmother to allow Revathi to return to school. Once re-enrolled, she became interested in educating other girls about menstrual hygiene, a taboo subject in the villages. Lalithamma mentored her to become a skilled public speaker. Revathi's outreach work netted her a Youth Changemaker Award from the Ashoka Foundation, & her newfound confidence fueled her pursuit of a college degree in technology. Today, Revathi works at (India technology company) Wipro, & continues her hygiene programs among girls.

As no Gala would be complete without glitz, music, & dance, the series featured bollywood dance performances, musical numbers & comedians across the cities. All Galas ended with guests taking to the dance floor in celebration to the jubilant beats of current & classic bollywood hits.

CRY America's "votes of confidence" toward its time-tested model for change & the impact created for children came thanks to the hundreds of guests who attended & their generous donations.

"CRY's donors & volunteers are our 'Heroes for Life' who ensure that our work for children can continue & grow," said Sunderlal.

Pushing For Education Equity

Imagine how frustrating school would have been for you as a native English speaker if your primary teachers had spoken only Latin. That may sound far-fetched, but for tribal children in Odisha, the struggle to comprehend basic lessons had been all too real.

In October 2022, I visited CRY America-supported Project Shikshasandhan in Odisha, where I learnt about the plight of children from the indigenous Ho tribe. The children faced a language barrier in public schools.

About 1.5 million tribal people speak the Ho language throughout Odisha, Jharkhand & West Bengal. However, teachers teach in the Odia language in schools. In addition to these language concerns, tribals lack access to schools due to their habitations' remoteness. Though the enactment of India's Right to Education Act ensures free & compulsory education for all children from 6 to 14 years, implementing this law remains a challenge in the tribal regions. The consequences had been dire for children from the Ho-speaking community in Mayurbhanj. Of nearly 1,500 children, 43% had been deprived of education.

Mr. Pradhan, Director of project Sikshasandhan, conceptualized the Multi-Lingual Education (MLE) approach. They started offering classes in the local language to the tribals. True to CRY America's guiding principle of creating locally owned solutions for local problems, they recruited & trained teachers & language assistants from the tribal community. These teachers taught in the tribal language of Ho while gradually integrating Odia.

To date, Sikshasandhan has trained 3,500 MLE teachers who serve more than 5,000 tribal children. Sikshasandhan's model caught the attention of the Mayurbhanj District Collector, who extended the program to 176 other schools within the district.

Using the local language in schools has resulted in 100% enrollment. Since children attend school, child labor rates have reduced. The team observed how MLE had unlocked the potential of many children. Now, children are moving on to higher education opportunities in cities. & every time these young people return to their village, they inspire children & parents alike to pursue the same goal.

Lalithamma Mentors Hundreds Of Underprivileged Children From Chittoor District

CRY America supported Project People's Organisation for Rural Development (PORD) in Chittoor district has been making a significant effort to change the lives of children. Project PORD organizes various activities, such as monitoring anganwadi centers while ensuring the re-enrolment of dropout children & conducting awareness programs & life skill sessions. Through Project PORD's work, thousands of children are actively engaged in children's collectives to change the course of their own lives & those of their peers.

Lalithamma, Director of Project PORD shared, "During the lockdown, CRY helped start the Bridge Course Program that helped bridge the education gap for children." The project has seen many success stories in the past few years, including that of Revathi.

Revathi was born in a small village in Andhra Pradesh. Her village did not have a secondary school, so she went to live with her grandparents. In 8th grade, Project PORD invited her to join the children's collective. She participated in several skill building programs & eventually became the collective's Secretary. She mobilized over 5,000 girls to spread awareness about menstrual hygiene & girl education. Today, she has completed her BTech in computer engineering & is working in one of India's top IT companies. She received the Ashoka Youth Venturer award for her work in child rights. Incredible transformations like Revathi's have only been possible thanks to the efforts of Project PORD & your generous support.

Lalithamma believes that CRY America is one of the biggest reasons behind the smiles of all the children in her project.

Fighting Against Discrimination

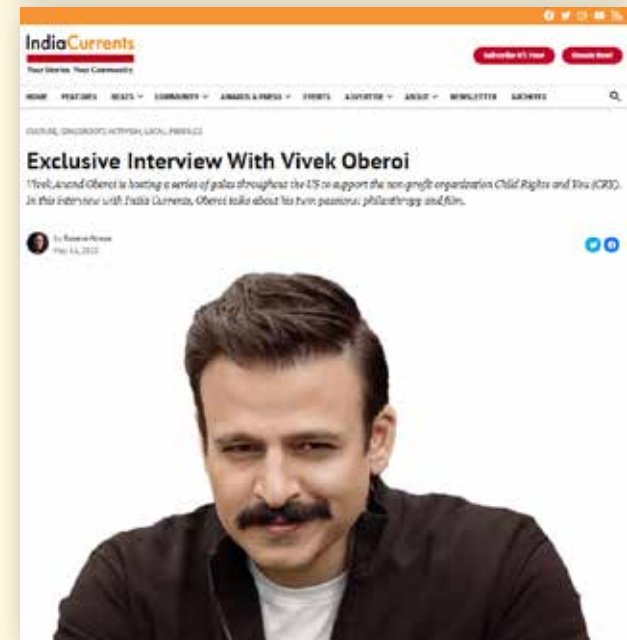

The visit to CRY America-supported Project Salem Peoples' Trust [SPT], Tamil Nadu, was inspiring & heartbreaking in equal measure. We were stunned to learn that the rate of female feticide in the villages had been 28%. Daughters were often hastened into early marriage or forced into child labor. But as we learned about Kirubavathi & how the project team helped her beat the odds, we saw a ray of hope for our children.

Kirubavathi lives with her family in Salem. When she was in 6th grade, her high school was demolished to make way for the National Highway. The children had to attend classes in the shade of a tree. Her parents gave up on the idea of a proper education & decided to involve her in daily wage work. At the time, she was also a part of SPT's children's collective. These collectives are a unique component of CRY America's model for lasting change. The collectives empower children by providing them with a safe space to express themselves freely & discuss their problems and dreams.

Since Kirubavathi started working with her parents, she stopped attending the meetings. The team members inquired about her absence and met with her parents. They explained the importance of their daughter's education & the ill effects of working as child labor. Later, she was re-enrolled in school & supplementary classes. But as soon as she completed her board exams, her relatives started discussing her marriage. But Kirubavathi's parents remained firm, thanks to the guidance they received from the SPT team.

Kirubavathi was admitted to a government college where she opted to pursue a B.Sc. in Microbiology. After completing her graduation, she started working as a lab technician. Her family is proud of her success & grateful for the support she is providing them. She has become a role model in the community. She told us, "If it were not for the SPT team, my story would have been much different. I am most grateful to have received such thoughtful & caring guidance."

Empowering Youth Through Education

CRY America supported Project People's Organization for Rural Development (PORD) in Madanapalle, Andhra Pradesh has been making significant progress in bettering the lives of children. When we arrived in the rural hamlet, we noticed no street lights & limited access to water. The villagers, mainly from the muslim community, resided in small houses built closely together.

When we met the adolescent children's group, we were impressed by their confidence & enthusiasm to study & succeed. 15-year-old Prerna, had excelled in her studies & would be joining the Indian Institute of Information Technology (IIIT) shortly. Prerna's story could have been very different were it not for the guidance she received from Project PORD. Her mother, being a single parent & the sole bread earner in the family, faced financial difficulties & was on the verge of discontinuing her daughter's education. She was also worried about her daughter's safety & wanted to get her married soon.

The Project PORD team began counseling both mother & daughter. They regularly visited her home to ensure that Prerna was attending school and career guidance sessions for grade 9 & 10 students. In these sessions, the team shared the options available to children after completing grade 10, including courses, colleges & career-mapping activities. Prerna shared her dream of attending IIIT & launching a career in technology. Project PORD arranged for a community worker to start visiting her after school to help her with study methods & preparations. In March 2022, she cleared her 10th grade board exams, taking 1st place in her school & the entire block!

As a newly admitted IIIT student, Prerna is confident and on her way to becoming a software engineer under Project PORD's guidance. Your support has made Prerna's triumph possible!

Thank you for being heroes that bring change to children's live!
